Method:

I began with researching archival sources available at the Galt museum looking at the development of the Warehouse District looking for recurring names of people and businesses and from there delved further into newspapers and census data for more information to tell the stories of people and businesses in the area.

Introduction:

This Project was a Part of the Warehouse District Redevelopment Plan. The goal was to conduct research into the Warehouse district and compile findings into a report which consultants of the city could draw upon for future heritage projects in the area.
